Mean temperature, 49. THE PLANETS IN JANUARY.

Something for the Star-Gazers.

JUPITER is morning star until the 19th, and then evening star until the 7th of August. It is sometimes difficult to decide which of the planets wins the place of honor for the month. But those who watch the movements of these shining wanderers will agree in placing Jupiter at the head of the list. On the 19th he reaches the most interesting point in his course, for at 10 o'clock on the evening of that day he is in opposition. A straight line drawn from the mighty Jupiter to the more mighty sun will then pass through the earth, our little planet lying between the two mon-sters of the system. It would take more than a million earths to make one sun, and thirteen hundred earths to make one Jupiter. We can therefore learn a lesson of our own insignificance when we compare our globe with these huge masses.

At opposition Jupiter takes on his most brilliant aspect, and no one can wonder that the ancients named him for the greatest of their gods, "star of imperial Jove." Though he never shines with the fascina-ting beauty that distinguishes Venus at her ting beauty that distinguishes vehus at her period of greatest brilliancy, he enjoys a great advantage over his fair competitor. As he is an outer planet, he may be seen opposite the sun, rising when the sun sets, and mercasing his brightness against the blackness of the midnight opposite the sun, rising when the sun sets, and increasing his brightness of the midnight the year so many things press upon the people.

New, as the winter is upon us, at this season of the midnight the year so many things press upon the people.

Burned to Death.

Yesterday morning about 7 o'clock an alarm of fire was turned in from Station 3, Second police-station. A woman named Jane Thompson was seen to rush out of the kitchen at Mr. John Bowers's residence, corner Clay and Eighth streets, with her dress in full blaze. This caused the alarm. The woman cooked for Mr. Bowers's family, and while standing near the kitchen fire had her dress to ignite. She did as almost every one else under similar circumstances does: ran out of doors for aid. Pacovering her presents.
